

SERBIA FACES CRISIS AGAIN

Reported That King Peter And Royal Family
Will Leave Belgrade At Once.

NO WAR WITH AUSTRIA CONSIDERED

Action Of Powers In Recognizing Annexation Of Disputed
Territory Will Probably Result In Serbia's
Giving Up War Talk.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, March 20.—(Dispatches have been received here announcing that while the prospects of war between Serbia and Austria are practically at an end there is danger of serious internal complications and a prospect of civil strife.

Removal Departure.
One of the rumors reported today is that King Peter and his royal family are to depart from Belgrade with all possible haste owing to the feelings of the citizens due to the settlement of the throne in the hands of the king.

Rome and Vienna.
This report comes from both Rome and Vienna where reliable sources of news are established and a close watch is being kept upon Serbia and Belgrade in particular. It has not been authenticated from Belgrade, however.

Forced to Give Up.
Belgrade, March 20.—By the action of the ministers of Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Italy, who will this afternoon inform the Serbian government that they recognize the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina by Austria, the cause for war with Austria will be removed.

End Trouble.
It is thought that this action will end all the trouble that for the past six months has placed the Balkan in the war column and that Serbia will completely surrender to the demands of the European powers in this matter.

ANXIOUSLY WAIT NEWS OF FIGHT WITH INDIANS IN OKLAHOMA

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Oklahoma City, March 20.—Five companies of Oklahoma militia men started at daylight today from Camp in the vicinity of Muskogee in pursuit of the hundred Creek Indians, half-brothers, and negroes, under personal command of Chief Crazy Snake, and before the day is over, it is expected that either the hostiles will surrender or a battle which, if fought in the open can only result unfavorably to the Indians will ensue.

The troops outnumber the Indians three to one and if the former are successful in overtaking the redskins before they reach their stronghold in Tiger mountain the ultimate outcome is not in doubt, but victory may be costly to troops as the enemy is well armed and prepared to fight to death.

The night passed without any notable incident except that the reds held a war dance in their camp until daylight.

No Fight Yet.
Kansas City, March 20.—A communication from Muskogee, Okla., the nearest telegraph point to the scene of the Indian uprising, at one o'clock this afternoon, brought the information that no news of any fresh encounter between the troops and Indians had been received.

MADISON CLUB WILL DISCUSS PRIMARIES

Interesting Discussion Expected at the Six O'clock Club in the Capitol
City Tonight.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 20.—Interesting as possibly forecasting the trend of legislation in regard to the primary election system will be the meeting of the Madison club tonight, which will be addressed by prominent members of the legislature of both parties and noted students of the subject.

The meeting will be presided over by Prof. H. H. Meyer, chairman of the state railroad commission, and the speakers will include State Senators S. M. Marsh of Neillsville and Paul E. Hunsinger of Mayville, Assemblyman George P. Hunsinger of Grand Rapids, James M. Clancy of Stoughton, and Prof. Ernest Meyer of the University of Wisconsin.

All of the speakers except James M. Clancy are in favor of the primary election system in theory, differing in its application and in the method used to carry out the purpose. Senator Marsh, who is chairman of the senatorial investigating committee, an original La Follette supporter and an original worker for primary election, but favors legislation which will relate the names of candidates on the ballot; the provision for "second choice" and the limitation of campaign expenses. Senator Hunsinger is a "progressive" democrat who, contrary to the majority of his party, favors the primary system. Assemblyman Hunsinger believes in primary election but especially favors legislation which will limit the expenditure of money in campaigns. Prof. Meyer has made a deep study of the primary and has set down the result of his researches in a book.

Mr. Clancy, who is prominent among the democrats of the state and one of its most brilliant lawyers, recently was interviewed as to his view of the primary election system and the view he expressed then doubtless is still held by him. Said he: "When the majority of representative government commenced to talk about this law they told us it would rob the money of its power and all the public mind with scurrilous chicanery and angles; that it would give the poor man a chance to jump aside the plume of fame with his overalls; that it would make politics as pure as the driven snow and establish representative government upon a safe and sure foundation. So far as the present (senatorial) investigation has progressed it shows vast and foolish expenditures, many of which bear unmistakable evidence of red-handed grafting, of yielding to importunate demands with no reasonable expectation of political benefits of gains."

FAMOUS PRELATE IS 75 YEARS OLD

Cardinal Gottl, One of the Ablest
Members of the Sacred College,
Has an Anniversary.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Rome, March 20.—Cardinal Giulio Maria Gottl, prefect of the Sacred College and undoubtedly one of the ablest as well as one of the most famous members of the Sacred college, was seventy-five years old today. Beyond receiving the usual congratulations of some of his ecclesiastical colleagues, the eminent cardinal, whom nine out of every ten well-informed Catholics believed would be the successor of Pope Leo XIII., allowed the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth to pass unmarked, for he still adheres to the austere life prescribed for the Carmelite order of monks to which he belongs.

The origin of this extraordinary man was an extremely humble one. His family belonged to the lowest social strata of Italy. The older Gottl was a dock laborer, with little learning and no ambitions. "The son, however, discarded an abnormal devotion to religion, and at the age of 11 he entered the barefoot Carmelite Order and proved so brilliant a scholar that he was soon transferred to the house of the order in Rome. Little by little he rose from one post to another, always making an advance with every new change, until he became superior of the mother house of the society and was finally chosen superior general.

While he was in this position of power the Pope sent him to Brazil, where he showed administrative ability of the highest order. He spent three years in Brazil and succeeded in placing a mission to reorganize the church there. Upon his return to Rome he was created a cardinal. Since then his ability as a diplomat has been evidenced on more than one occasion. His knowledge of canon law is asserted by many to be superior to that of any other member of the Sacred college. He is a distinguished orator and speaks French with perfection and Latin with as much grace as did the late Pope Leo XIII.

In his private life Cardinal Gottl is very modest. He lives in a palace overlooking the forum of Trajan, but he is still the barefoot monk, at least in spirit. His sleeping apartment is furnished like that in which he spent his early years and he uses no electric light and is never in a car. He is a simple man who is positively impressed upon him by the rules regulating the life of a cardinal.

"HAVE YO' SEEN MISTAH JOHNSON?"

That is the Question of the Hour
Among the Afro-Americans of Thompson Street, New York.

New York, March 20.—Jack Johnson, billed as the heavyweight champion of the world, is in town. His visit is providing something of a sensation for the colored population. In Thompson street, in Sixth and Ninth Aves. and in some of the crossstreets of Harlem where the Afro-American brother has his habitation, the one and only question heard these days is "Have Yo' Seen Mistah Johnson?"

The arrival of the big black man was marked by a popular ovation that was calculated to throw a shadow, in all senses of the word, over the reputation recorded James J. Jeffries a few weeks ago. The man who was sufficiently well acquainted with the victor over Tommy Burns to slap him on the back and say "Hello, Jack!" was looking upon him as the crowd as a man much to be envied. To approach within a few feet of the dusky slugger and to bow low before him was regarded as a rare privilege by those of his race.

Ill With Pneumonia: John Kruppa, who tried, or at least persuaded his wife that he was trying to commit suicide with a knife at his home on North Franklin street several weeks ago, is in a critical condition with pneumonia at the hospital.

BUSY WEEK WILL BE EXPERIENCED

LEGISLATURE HAS MANY MAT-TERS OF IMPORTANCE TO CONSIDER.

MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

Will Come Up For Decision Before
State Legislature This Coming
Seven Days.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., March 20.—The assembly has set as an special order for Wednesday all inheritance tax bills, including the measure introduced by Assemblyman Meritt Hull of Black River Falls which provides that the proportion which the state receives in legacy taxes shall be turned into the common school fund. The apportionment of the proceeds of this tax is to be in accordance to the school population of each county, the same as the school funds are now distributed.

Another important inheritance tax bill to be considered on that day was presented by Assemblyman Krumper of Racine to give the county a larger share of the inheritance tax. His original bill provided for an equal division of the tax between the state and the county, but the assembly committee on taxation has amended it so as to give the county only ten per cent of the fees collected. At the present time the county receives only five per cent.

But the main fight will be made upon the Hull bill came out of the committee on taxation for indefinite postponement. It will probably have strong support and there are many who predict that the bill may even pass the assembly. The estimates are that the proceeds from legacy taxes to the state will amount to between $250,000 and $300,000 annually. It is a matter of common knowledge that a larger appropriation must be made each year to the school fund if the common schools of the state of Wisconsin maintain a level with the schools of neighboring states. Both Indiana and Illinois have, during the past few years, been paying a great deal of attention to their common school fund and the fact that the inheritance tax is claimed to be a state tax Assemblyman Hull thinks furnishes a good argument for the use of this tax for school purposes rather than for general purposes.

In an interview today Assemblyman Hull called attention to the fact that there were 75,000 people of common school age but that the actual number attending public schools are 164,000. He says that while the total number between the ages of 7 and 14 years in the state, who come within the provision of a compulsory education law is 365,000, only 225,000 or about sixty per cent are in the public schools. He declared that the common school system has been neglected in the state in comparison with the lavish outlay for higher education and it is time the state took up the question and endeavored to bring the common school system to a standard which will equal that of its institution for higher learning. He thinks no better method can be found for adding the common school than that proposed in the bill providing that they shall receive the proceeds of the inheritance taxes, and that of the vast sum of indirect taxation which has been raised within the past few years a large portion of it has come to the university and normal schools, while but a small portion of it has been directed to the benefit of the institutions of learning patronized by the greater portion of the people of this state.

One of the interesting contests before the assembly this week will be the debate upon the bill to exact a $1000 fee annually from operators of travelling medicine wagons. The bill has been given a hearing before the committee on state affairs which has reported it for indefinite postponement, but the bill is not yet dead. It will make a special order for consideration this week and it is understood that some of the men interested in the welfare of the country, drug stores will be urged that the bill be passed. It is apparent however that the feeling in favor of the indefinite postponement of the measure is so strong that there is little hope of its getting through the assembly. It is getting through the assembly. It is getting through the assembly. It is getting through the assembly.

WENT TO HER DEATH IN AUBURN PRISON, NEW YORK STATE, THIS MORNING AT SIX.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, March 20.—The execution of Mrs. Mary Farmer, who was doomed to die in the electric chair at Auburn Prison, came this morning at six o'clock. The execution of women have been so rare in this country in recent years that it has led to the popular belief that the theory regarding sex and crime doesn't apply to murder. In other words the belief is that no jury nowadays will send a woman to the gallows or the electric chair.

The record of executions in which women have been the principals tends to strengthen this belief. No woman has been executed in the United States since December 8, 1906, on which date Mrs. Mary Rogers was hanged in the prison at Windsor, Vt., for the murder of her husband at Burlington three years previously.

Noted lawyers often have been heard to say that no matter how clear the case or convincing the evidence, or perfect the chain of proof, it is useless to expect a verdict of murder in the first degree against a woman.

In the fifteen years since the electric chair was substituted for the hangingman's noose in the state of New York only one woman has died at the hands of the law. Yet in that period nearly three-score have been tried for murder and in a number of the cases the facts of the killing were admitted.

The single exception—prior to the case of Mrs. Farmer—was Mrs. Martha Place of Brooklyn, who killed her seventeen-year-old stepdaughter, Ida, in a brutal manner, and later, the same day, tried to butcher her husband with an axe.

After being out only a short time the jury brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, and on March 21, 1890—just ten years ago this week, by a peculiar coincidence—the wretched woman was put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing.

As in other cases where women had been convicted and sentenced to death, powerful movements by tender-hearted people were engineered to save Mrs. Place from the death chair. To save Mrs. Place was the cry. The governor of the state, and he let it be known with characteristic emphasis that no interference with the action of the court need be expected from him.

Prior to the execution of Mrs. Place there had been no "legal killing" of a woman in New York since 1857, when on February 28 of that year, Mrs. Roxanna Druse was hanged in Herkimer county for killing her husband. She was the last woman to die on the scaffold in New York state.

The crime of Mrs. Farmer, who is the second woman to go to the electric chair, was a most heinous one. The scheme of the crime was in Watertown, N. Y., and the date was April 25 of last year. Her victim, Mrs. Sarah Brennan, who was 55 years old, was her neighbor and intimate friend and the motive was to gain possession of the Brennan home, deeds of which Mrs. Farmer had forged several months previously. Mrs. Farmer had the aid of her husband, James D. Farmer, in the murder plot. Four days after Mrs. Brennan had disappeared a search revealed her badly mutilated body stuffed in a trunk in her own home, of which the Farmers had just taken possession. Farmer and his wife were at once arrested and were jointly indicted for murder in the first degree. They were tried separately, however, and both were convicted. An appeal was taken to the court of appeals in Mrs. Farmer's case. The conviction was unanimously confirmed and sentence of death was ordered to be executed during the week of March 20. An appeal was made to Governor Hughes for clemency on the ground that Mrs. Farmer was insane when she committed the crime. The governor, however, declined to interfere with the sentence of the court.

In denying the application for executive clemency Governor Hughes stated: "In this case, as in other capital cases, there are those who ask for executive interference because they are opposed to capital punishment, but the law of the state is that murder in the first degree is punishable by death." However important to the interests of justice may be the exercise of pardoning power in exceptional cases, the executive has no right to use this power for the purpose of effecting a practical repeal of the law. The law of the state regarding murder makes no distinction between the sexes, and a woman who is found guilty of this crime is subject to the same penalty as a man. The law should be impartially enforced."

COIL TO BE BROUGHT UP ON SAME CHARGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beloit, Wis., March 20.—The case of the state of Wisconsin against La Count Coil, charged with taking his property from Beloit, was brought up today for trial. The jury disagreed at the trial last week, but will be retried, instead another charge will be placed against Coil by the state. This charge will be of the same nature but the case is much stronger than the former one. The complaining witness is B. E. Manning and his 11-year-old daughter is the one upon whom the offense is charged to have been committed. A warrant for the arrest of Coil was sworn out this afternoon and the date of the hearing will be determined today.

The trial of J. F. Gordon, who stole mail envelopes at the Beloit Post Office a few weeks ago, was postponed until Wednesday, March 31.

Carl Wright, proprietor of a barber shop, and John Martin, one of his employees, were victims of ptomaine poisoning Saturday night. They took supper in a Beloit restaurant and afterward returned to work in the shop. Both were suddenly stricken with violent pains and fell to the floor unconscious. A doctor was called and worked over them half an hour. Both men had eaten lunch at the restaurant, but they do not know whether the coffee which they drank caused their troubles. They will both recover from the effects of the poison.

PAYS PENALTY IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

MRS. MARY FARMER DIES FOR BRUTAL MURDER OF NEIGHBOR.

SECOND WOMAN EXECUTED

Went to Her Death in Auburn Prison,
New York State, This Morning at Six.

He was accompanied by an officer of the law and found no difficulty in gaining admittance to the various institutions. The search, however, was without result.

NEW INDUSTRY INCREASES FORCE

Janesville Cigar Co. Add More Men. Account of Trade. The Janesville Cigar Co. have found it necessary to put on two more cigar makers to handle their rapidly increasing trade. This gives them a working force of ten expert cigar makers and the outlook is very favorable for the addition of more men. Only a part of the city trade has been solicited and the demand for the brands of cigars manufactured has become so insistent as to demonstrate the need for just such an institution here.

Town of Porter

Notice is hereby given that a republican caucus will be held at the Miller schoolhouse on Saturday, April 28 at 7 p. m. for the purpose of nominating town officers and such other business as may come before the meeting. By order of the committee.

Drummond's Papers Filed: J. J. Dulin this morning filed his formal declaration of the republican nomination for alderman of the Fifth ward and the way is now clear for the republican committee to fill the vacancy with the name of E. One of the few.

There is a man in our town, and he is wondrous wise; when he writeth to the editor he dotheth all his Ps. And when the Ps are dotted, to prove that he's the cheese, he punctuates each paragraph and crosseth all his Ps. Upon one side alone he writeth, and never rolls the leaves; so from the stern blue pencil man a smile he oft receives. And when a question he doth ask (he's truly a wise guy), a two-cent stamp he never fails to enclose for the reply.

YOUNG MEN WANTED.

United States Government Gives Railway Mail Clerks $800 a Year to Start, and Increases to $1200.

Uncle Sam will hold an examination for Railway Mail Clerks in the vicinity of Janesville and throughout the United States on May 15. Many ambitious young men, with only a very ordinary school education, can readily pass. The government wants young men over 18 with common sense, to take examinations for railway mail clerks and carriers, and the Government Positions Bureau, of Rochester, N. Y., with its peculiar knowledge of the requirements of the examination, can fit any young man in a short time to pass. A government position means steady work, good pay, and a yearly vacation. There is time to prepare for the May 15 examinations, and any reader of the Gazette can get full information how to proceed, free of charge, by writing The Government Positions Bureau, 221 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Needed the Money. Once, when taking breakfast at a hotel in Richmond, John Randolph complained that the eggs were not fresh. Thibetans Test of Character. The Thibetans have some strange tests for ascertaining the character of a man. One is by means of a hole in a block of granite, through which the individual has to crawl. If an honest man he will, according to the theory of the Thibetans, creep through, but if a scoundrel he will stop in the middle.—Dr. Sven Hedin's London Address.

Burglars' League. Rules of a "Burglars' League," of which he was president, were found on Jean Beland, who was arrested recently at Lyons. One provided for the exclusion of "any member who shows incapacity for the profession, and is arrested three in succession;" another provided for an admission test; and a third insisted on the equal division of the spoils.

Woman's Weapons. If a woman has a soft voice, if her dress is only the right kind of simplicity, if she knows how to look down and look up at the psychological moment, if she has only mastered the art of combining the wisdom of the serpent with the gentleness of the dove, she can outwit a dozen of the stereotyped brand of adventuresses.—Lady's Pictorial, London.

TRAIN RACES; DEATH TOO FLEET

Brooks Speed Record But Fails in Purpose.

BANKER RUSHES TO MOTHER

Frank A. Vanderlip, Though Smashing
the New York to Chicago Time, Reaches Home Soon After His Parent Has Died.

Chicago, Mar. 20.—Death was too fleet yesterday in a race with the fastest train ever run in this country. Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City bank of New York, caused the breaking of the speed record between New York and Chicago in a vain effort to see his mother alive.

The race was lost by 28 minutes. Mr. Vanderlip chartered a special train to reach the bedside of his dying mother, Mrs. Charlotte L. Vanderlip, 5331 Madison avenue. Twenty-eight minutes before his train flew into the Englewood station, the departed from the frail body of the aged woman.

Mrs. Vanderlip, who was 63 years old, had been ill a week from pneumonia. Her son had been kept almost hourly informed of her condition.

News of Approaching Death.
Shortly before midnight, Saturday night, she took a decided change for the worse. Mr. Vanderlip was informed by telegram that it was feared she could not live.

Calling up the New York office of the Lake Shore railroad he told them to have a special ready for him in 50 minutes.

Officials replied that they couldn't get a fast train ready in that time. "I want it and I haven't any time to spare," Mr. Vanderlip answered.

Without waiting for a reply he hung up the receiver. In an automobile he was rushed to the Grand Central station in New York. The officials had rigged up a train of three coaches and a private car by that time. It was exactly 11:40 o'clock when the special pulled by an electric motor engine, draw out of the station.

Hardly had it left the big depot on its race against death than the wires half way across the United States were buzzing with orders to sidetrack everything and clear track.

"Clear the Track," Is Order.

Never before in the history of the road had such an order been given. Flyers and limited trains, the pride of the railroad world were thrown into the background as though they were common "plug" freight. A continuous clear schedule from New York to Chicago was hastily arranged.

At Highbridge, at the outskirts of New York the special made its first stop. It was then 1:02 o'clock. The electric motor was disconnected. The hurried order had left the officials there in a sorry plight. Only a small steam road engine was available. It was hastily connected on to the special.

The little engine, with the hands on the steam gauge set almost to the danger mark, started in on the first lap of the great record-breaking fight. The crew worked their best.

At 6:30 o'clock in the morning a pause was made while a big mogul of the 4,800 type replaced the smaller engine. But 30 seconds were spent in the operation.

Record Time to Cleveland.

At 9:27 a. m. the train arrived at Cleveland. The lap between Buffalo and the latter place of 183 miles was made in 158 minutes. When the train steamed into Toledo, 108 miles from that place, 116 minutes later, it had covered the hardest division on the road.

The next lap of 133 miles, to Elkhart, Ind., was made in 123 minutes. Here the yardmen were slow. Three minutes were lost in changing engines.

Eighteen minutes ahead of the special when it left Elkhart, was the "Twentieth Century" limited, the fastest train and the pride of the road. At Mishawaka, the special overtook and passed the train, ten minutes time having elapsed.

With the train crew working almost to exhaustion, the last lap was made in record-breaking time. Between Elkhart and the Englewood station, a distance of 95 miles, the time was 92 minutes. The special beat the 18-hour train by 53 minutes to that point.

The train arrived at the Englewood depot at 2:58 o'clock yesterday afternoon, 15 hours and 27 seconds after it left its destination. The actual time spent in running was 14 hours and 27 seconds, subtracting the hour's difference in time between New York and Chicago.

ON MAKING PRETENSES

THE girl who could eat chocolates, continue her embroidery and talk at the same time necessarily held the floor, her versatile talents giving her the right to do so.

"Double, person, allities!" she sniffed. "I don't see why they make such a fuss over a simple affair like that!"

Why, any girl who has any pride at all in her achievements has a dozen personalities, and in any one of them she would have to be introduced to her real self if they chanced to meet! If you are going to be a success you simply can't afford to be your real self all the while, you know.

"In the first place, half the people you met wouldn't understand you; half the rest would be bored, and two-thirds of the remainder would go away and talk about you."

"I'm not speaking of relatives, because usually they are the least acquainted with you of anybody. Why, I've met utter strangers with whom in five minutes I was more in accord than with all the cousins and aunts and what-not I'd known all my life."

"But that isn't what I started out to say. We girls show our variegated assortment of selves more distinctly according to the man who happens to be calling on us or taking us out somewhere. Yes, you do, Annie!" she broke off, accusingly, glaring at a girl who looked rebellious.

"I hope," said the rebellious girl, a little stiffly, "that I have character enough and sense enough not to try to deceive."

"Oh, that's all right," broke in the girl who was doing the talking. "I've no doubt you have a perfectly glittering rock-bound strength of character, but I'd like to know what good it does you when Henry dawns on your horizon. Why, you know you take no more interest in the state of the pig-iron market than you do in the color of the toga Julius Caesar wore to breakfast on Mondays, yet you resolve yourself into a regular blank phonograph record into which Henry pours an account of what pig iron sold for last week, and what it is going to sell for next week, and how he is slaying it single-handed."

"At discreet intervals, when he has to catch his breath, you repeat snatches of his own remarks to him, and generally admire him for his sagacity." Henry, simply, has got to have some one admire him and you know right well if you didn't do it he'd hunt up some girl who would. He demands adoration and you supply the best, hand-made, all-purposive, saccharine brand on the market, and if you keep it up faithfully he's sure to marry you in the near future."

"I think you are perfectly horrid!" flared the object of those remarks.

"We all do it," pursued the first girl, calmly. "There's the man who prides himself on his ability to understand women. Instantly in his presence a girl becomes a little helpless and appealing. There is a look in her eyes as she glances at him that asks him to spare her inexperience and her simplicity, because all her sweet young life she knows is as an open book to him. This makes him feel good. He likes metaphorically to pat her on the head and murmur: 'Poor little girl! Though I know you better than you know yourself, yet will I not take advantage of my knowledge. I will act just as if you were as clever as I am.'"

"If you're trying to hit me," spoke up the blonde girl, excitedly, "I don't think it is very nice of you! I never look at Arthur that way, never."

"And then," went on the talker, "when a blustering, gruff man comes along who maintains that he is perfectly independent of sympathy and despises the gentler graces, we adopt a half-fellow-well-met air and a lady-like cynicism. We cultivate a nice little bitter twist to our lips and a shrug to our shoulders. Oh, we are seasoned, disillusioned, cold spectators of a disappointed world, and many many times have we thought the very thoughts he is putting into words so forcefully. Yes, indeed! We make ourselves into a slightly dimmer replica of him as he is mentally."

"Then, if a man comes along who is frothy and optimistic, we have the mace of comedy beaten a mile so far as a smile goes. We sparkle. We effervesce. If we don't sparkle naturally we put up such a good imitation it would deceive an expert. That is really the most wearing kind of man to live up to. I don't know anything more tiresome than having to be giddy when you feel like a freight car full of Henry's beloved pig iron."

"Say," ended the girl who was doing the talking, "wouldn't it be easier if there were only one pattern of man, instead of a few thousands?"

"I'm sure," said the blonde girl, still, laughingly, "that I'm fond of all my friends! I don't understand you in the least!"

"I suppose not," said the girl who had been talking, with a sigh. "I love you, Arthur, but you really don't belong to the one-third of the last quarter of the second half of the entire population I spoke about at first!"

TAME HUNT FOR ROOSEVELT.

Dana Estes Says It Will Be Like
"Shooting Cows."

New York, Mar. 20.—In the opinion of Dana Estes, the well-known Boston publisher, who arrived on the St. Louis after a 25,000-mile journey in Europe, Asia and Africa, former President Roosevelt will find hunting big game in East Africa "like shooting cows in a back yard."

"The antelope and animals of that kind are so tame," he said, "that they graze about the railroad track and scarcely look up as the train goes by. I saw thousands of zebras, antelopes, ostriches, etc. They were within a few hundred yards of the train and most of them never even so much as lifted their heads as we went by."

THREE HUNTERS DROWNED.

Hundreds on Shore Powerless to Save
Men from Death.

Waterloo, Ind., Mar. 20.—While several hundred persons watched, powerless to help, Christ Anderson and Henry Rothman, duck hunters, clinging to an upturned boat, from which Frank Bentz had already jumped and drowned, went over the falls in the Cedar river yesterday and drowned. The three men tried to cross the river just above the falls and the boat upset.

Their screams for help attracted a crowd, but no one could do anything to aid the doomed men while the upturned boat raced wildly toward the brink of the falls. Bentz, who was a laborer, struck out for the shore and swam valiantly until his strength gave out and he sank when almost at the bank of the river. The other two men went over the falls and did not reappear on the face of the water.

Anderson was assistant manager of the Herlick Refrigerator Company and Rothman was a saloonkeeper. The boat was recovered a mile below the falls.

Miss Spler attended Mrs. Virginia Callan Carder, wife of Dr. George L. Carder, a prominent society woman at the Alleghenese hospital and displayed such a lovable disposition toward the sick woman that the latter asked the nurse to kiss her as she was dying.

The request was granted and in a few days Miss Spler was stricken with the same malady.

CAMPAIGN PLANS TO BE DISCUSSED

CITY CHAIRMAN H. L. McNAMARA CALLS REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES TOGETHER.

MEET THIS EVENING AT 7:30

At His Store—City Committee Also Expected to Be Present—Will Discuss Matters Political.

Chairman H. L. McNamara, of the republican city committee has issued the following call to all republican candidates to meet with the members of the city republican committee to discuss plans for the campaign.

All Candidates.
All republican candidates for city offices are requested to meet this evening at 7:30 at my store to discuss with the members of the republican city committee plans for the coming election.
H. L. McNAMARA, Chairman.

This promises to be the opening of the spring campaign. The city committee is composed of the following members: First ward—W. F. Carls, Sanford Severdill, C. H. Elmer; Second ward—Fred Clements, Louis Skavlan, S. C. Burnham; Third ward—W. H. Greenman, N. L. Carls, H. J. Cunningham; Fourth ward—no new committee was named so the old committee holds over, which was D. Cunningham, Harry Carter and Charles Curtis; Fifth ward—J. A. Sutherland, George Rumlill and E. H. Peterson.

The entrance of Dr. Pember into the troubled waters of the Fourth ward campaign means that a bitter fight will be waged in this ward with a fair hope of a republican victory in this usually strong democratic ward. Mr. Scott, the republican candidate in the second ward, also has a good chance of winning out, and with E. H. Peterson as a candidate in the fifth ward, the republican city ticket is complete.

The meeting this evening will discuss ways and means of conducting the campaign and a strenuous war will be expected by local politicians in all the different wards.

Proposed Revocation of Liquor Licenses and Milk Ordinance Among Things to Be Considered.

City Attorney Maxfield's communication asking the authorities to revoke the licenses of the Podewell saloon and the Union House will be before the common council for consideration this evening. It is not likely that the alleged transfer of the Union House bar business to Mr. Malone will deter the City Fathers from taking the action recommended. Milwaukee's milk ordinance goes into effect on April 1 and it is possible that some steps may be taken tonight to prevent Janesville from becoming a dumping ground for wares that cannot be marketed in the metropolis. Some action will probably be taken with regard to the petition of the Wisconsin Carriage Co. for permission to throw a bridge across Milwaukee street in connection with a proposed new plant at its factory, and William E. Carls's resignation as alderman will be accepted without doubt.

AL. HILT'S HORSE DROWNED IN RIVER

And Jesse Meadows, the Driver, Had Narrow Escape—Nag Went Over Croak Brewery Embankment.

A valuable horse belonging to Al. Hilt and driven by his son-in-law, J. E. Meadows, bucked over the high embankment east of the Croak Brewing Co.'s plant about nine o'clock this morning and was drowned after a brief and futile struggle. Mr. Meadows was driving into the narrow 20-foot roadway between the building and the edge of the embankment and had started to disembark to talk with Mr. Hilt, who was working in the basement, when the animal, becoming frightened at the puff of steam which issued from the boiler, began to back. The next instant the back wheels went over the brink and the driver jumped from the vehicle and made an effort to save the horse. But the nag's hind legs had already followed the vehicle and he had to take his chance of letting go or following the outfit into the stream. The poor beast toppled over backward and was badly tangled in the harness as it struck the water. It tried to swim and save itself but to no avail. The box of the buggy which had been broken loose by the accident, floated down river to the dam. Mr. Hilt valued the horse at $150 or more.

Plain Talk To Voters.

Candidate John C. Nichols Talks on Lower Taxes and Economical Expenditures of the City's Money.

In starting a discussion on the subject of lower taxation and a more economical expenditure of the city's money, I understand I am treading upon dangerous ground and the question may be asked how the Mayor can bring about such a state of affairs. The great keynote of any successful business or municipal administration is harmony. Concerted action on the part of the Mayor and members of the common council. The Mayor has the right of veto of ordinances and has the right of deciding the votes on important matters.

Harmony of all interests represented in the council can do much to expedite business and lessen friction that often leads to a useless waste and expenditure of city funds. Janesville is at present in the midst of building a much-needed sewerage system. Taxes for this work will not lessen until the work is completed but by an economical and careful consideration of matters relating to city affairs they can be kept down to the lowest possible figure. Improvements cost money and this money is raised by means of taxation. However, care in letting contracts and careful watch over the work done can keep the expenses of these necessary matters down to a minimum.

I believe it to be the duty of a Mayor to guard carefully the interests of every individual taxpayer and carefully investigate all plans which mean the use of money. If elected Mayor I should make it my careful study to thoroughly investigate every project or public work in process of construction and carefully consider all sides of the question before the expenditure of the city's money is permitted.

The power of veto which lies with the Mayor is an efficient curb to any waste of city funds and this power if carefully exercised will mean the saving of thousands of dollars yearly to the city. Saving of money means lessened taxes to the property owners and what appeals to the purse should be carefully considered. Janesville needs many civic improvements but I do not believe that the city is justified in a wasteful expenditure of money to bring this about. Matters can be taken up in order and I think that the completion of the city's sewerage system is first to be considered and when this is completed we can take up other matters of importance without seriously burdening the taxpayer.

If elected as your mayor I shall endeavor to bring about harmony of all interests in the city and place the city upon a firm financial basis by careful and conservative administration of municipal affairs.

Respectfully,
JOHN C. NICHOLS.

Information to Voters in Regard to the Election to Be Held on April 6, 1909

DIRECTIONS FOR VOTING ON THE VOTING MACHINE: 1st. Close the curtain. 2d. Pull the Yellow Lever having on it the names of your political party over to the right until the Bell rings. (This will turn down the Pointers over the names of the candidates in your party.) 3d. If you wish to vote a Straight Party Ticket, leave the Pointers as they are (Down, in their voting position). But if you wish to "split," or "scratch," your ticket, turn Up the Pointer from over the name of the candidate in your own party that you wish to cut out, and then turn Down the Pointer over the name of the candidate you wish to vote for, and leave it there. 4th. Vote for the Judges and State Superintendent of Schools in columns No. 15 and higher, by turning down a Pointer over each name you wish to vote for, and leaving it there. (As these are non-partisan officers, they must each be voted for individually, as their Pointers are not turned down by the pulling of the Party Levers.) 5th. Open the Curtain. NOTE—Unless you are sure that you know just how to operate the machine, it would be well for you to practice on some machine before election day.

HOW TO VOTE ON THE U. S. STANDARD VOTING MACHINE.

Move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the right as far as it will go. This will close the Curtain around you, and unlock the machine for voting.

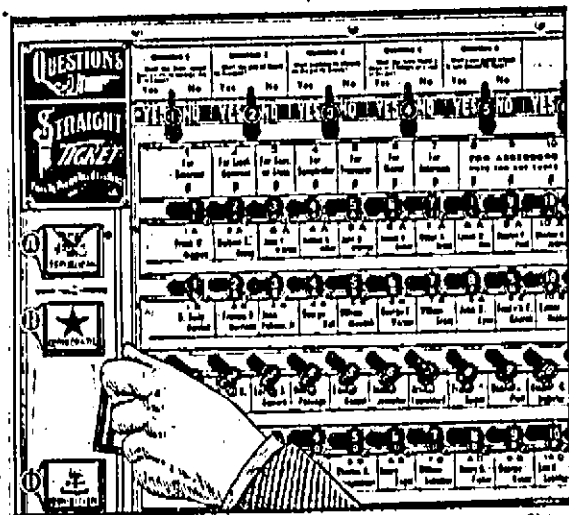

VOTER ABOUT TO CLOSE THE CURTAIN.

HOW TO VOTE A STRAIGHT TICKET.

Having closed the Curtain—Pull the Party Lever bearing the name or emblem of your Party over to the right UNTIL THE BELL RINGS, and then let it go back. This turns down to a voting position all of the Pointers of the candidates of your party.

The ringing of the bell signifies that the Party Lever has been pulled far enough to unlock the Curtain Lever and engage the registering mechanism.

VOTER PULLING OVER PARTY LEVER.

The turned down Pointers indicate the names of the candidates for whom the vote will be cast.

Leave the Pointers as they are (down in a voting position).

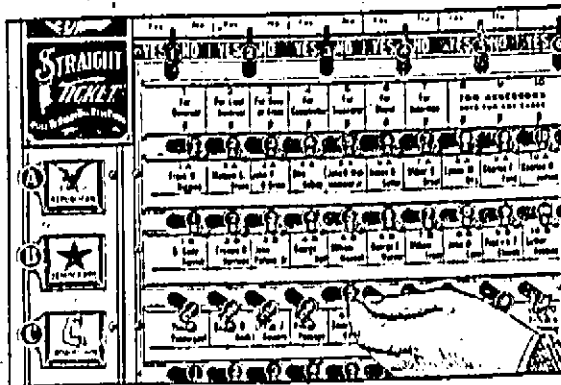

Move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the left as far as it will go.

This will count your vote, open the Curtain, and set the machine for the next voter.

HOW TO VOTE A SPLIT TICKET.

Having closed the Curtain—Pull the Party Lever bearing the name or emblem of your Party over to the right UNTIL THE BELL RINGS, and then let it go back. This turns down to a voting position all of the Pointers of the candidates of your party.

Turn back (up) the Pointer from over the name of the candidate you wish to cut. See illustration below.

And then turn down a Pointer over the name of the candidate you wish to vote for that office. See illustration below.

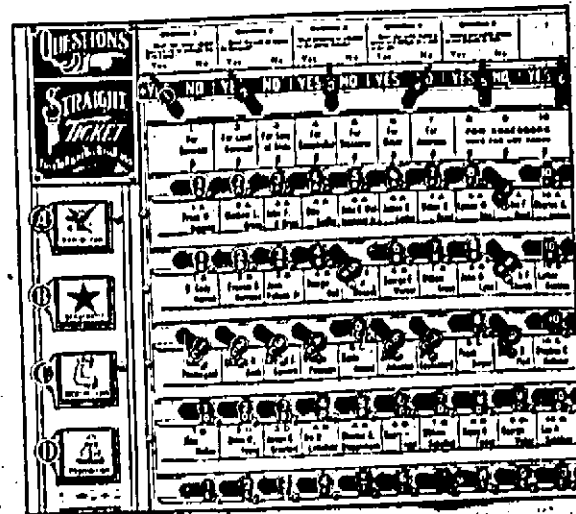

Be sure to complete each Split before making another. For an office to which two or more candidates are to be elected, the required number of candidates can be voted for, and no more, regardless of position.

After the vote is arranged, move the Red Handle of the Curtain Lever to the left as far as it will go. This will count one vote for every candidate that has a Pointer left down over his name.

HOW TO VOTE ON QUESTIONS.

To vote Yes, turn the Question Pointer to the word Yes, and leave it there. To vote No, turn the Question Pointer to the word No, and leave it there.

THE ABOVE CUT SHOWS:

That the voter has voted Party Lever "C" and then—
Split his vote for Treasurer, on Column 5.
That he has voted for Assessors, voting for three on Column 4 (for which office he is permitted to vote for any three candidates on either of the Columns, 8, 9, and 10);
That he has voted "Yes" on Questions 1 and 2.
That he has not voted on Questions 3 and 5.
That he has voted "No" on Question 4.
If the voter desires, he may make any further changes while the Curtain remains closed, as the vote is not registered until the Curtain is opened.
The Pointers must be left down over the names to be voted for. If the voter turns them back the vote will not be counted, as the opening of the Curtain turns back the Pointers and counts the vote.

In old age we are sorry for the wicked things we did in manhood—this is the time of our dotage."—Christian Register.

For Sick Persons.
When beef can be served to a sick person get a small piece of good porchouse steak and broil it on the range. It will be free from frying grease, and the juices will not be boiled out. Cooked until tender, seasoned with fresh butter, salt and pepper, the dish is one of the most nutritious articles of food that can be given to furnish strength to a person regaining lost health.
Logical Inference.
Lord Lucas, who is so ably supporting Mr. Hahnemann in the territorial scheme, tells a good story of a teacher in a Midland town noted for his patriotic fervor. One day he was explaining to his class what he thought was a sad lack of proper spirit in the average English boy. "Now, Tommy," he said, "tell us what you would think if you saw a Union Jack waving proudly over the field of battle." "I should think," was the logical reply of Thomas, "that the wind was blowing."
Novel Use for German Soldiers.
A curious rule falls to the lot of the private soldier who may be quartered in the garrison at Heidelberg, inasmuch as it seems to be expected that any private may be brought into regulation as an object for study by the students of anatomy at the university.—The Sunday Magazine.

Ordinary hard luck never ruins people. It puts them in a mood to learn a thing or two. Everybody makes mistakes. With some it is a regular occupation; but to make a mistake and wall about it is to make two.

For Quinsy Sore Throat.
Someone, I have forgotten who, asked for a cure for this painful trouble. I have known the following to be very successful: Mix thoroughly equal parts of alcohol and glycerin, and one tablespoon of mixture to one-half glass of water and use as a gargle. It taken when throat first shows trouble will usually break up the attack. Use the gargle frequently. This is good for any sore throat.

At the battle of Fleuris, June 26, 1794, the balloon was for the first time used in the service of the army. Colbourn, who cried out: "Is there anything these scoundrels will not invent?"

Camera Points Out Faults.
Before the Royal Photographic Society of England a lecturer said recently: "One of the reasons why Americans excel in certain branches of athletics is that athletic clubs in the United States use the focalplane photograph and the cinematograph to record every incident of their practices. BARGAINS IN REMNANTS

THURSDAY, APRIL 1st, WILL BE REMNANT DAY

It is only necessary to announce that The Big Store is going to have a remnant sale to arouse the expectation of the women of Janesville and the surrounding country. A remnant sale that The Big Store can make is so much greater than any other remnant sale that any other concern hereabouts can possibly make that the women folks at once take notice and get busy. We have accumulated an immense number of remnants from all departments, and will make one great day of remnant selling. Thousands of remnants of the very best grade of merchandise priced so low that one does not have to be a judge of values to realize that they are great bargains.

DRESS GOODS

We are frequently told by traveling men and brother merchants who occasionally call, that our stock of dress goods is simply wonderful compared with the size of the city. This fact we know is appreciated by our large army of regular customers. Then again, there are certain few people who do not take the trouble to get informed in regard to this store's exceedingly large and up-to-date stock, who go further and fare worse.

We are now showing our complete line of Spring Dress Goods. Colors, weaves and weights of fabrics in a varied range consisting of imported and domestic satins, taffetas, Henriettas, batistes, serges, mohairs and suitings. We mention a few very good leaders. WOOL SATIN, a fine imported all wool fabric, the correct idea for suits, skirts and costumes, lends itself perfectly to draping, soft and lustrous colors, black, catwaba, wisteria, taupe, gendarme, navy, brown and rose. 42 inch, our special price, $1.35 yard.

ANOTHER quality, width 42 inches, in liberal assortment of shades, a fine, perfect cloth, very special, $1.00 yard. NOVELTY TAFFETA, a self colored stripe with diamond shape jacquard between stripes, a beautiful, soft and lustrous cloth, finely woven, comes in only a few of the leading shades, 40 inches wide, $1.00 yard.

HENRIETTA—Fashion again calls out this practical fabric and in the wanted finish and weight. All colors, including the new blues and rose shades. We ask comparison on this real value, 42 inches wide, $1.00 yard.

IMPORTED WOOL TAFFETA, brought out in the desired weight and beautifully finished, all colors, 36 to 40 inches wide. Know it by quarter inch white selvage, 85c yd. SATIN STRIPE SERGE SUITING, a specially priced all wool suiting in new shades only, wisteria, rose, catwaba, 42 in., 85c yd.

HERRINGBONE STRIPE SERGE—We call attention to this, our fine stripe serge, very popular and the price quoted makes it a ready seller, splendid value, colors black, navy, green, brown, new blue, 45 in. wide, $1.35 yard.

Other desirable Dress Goods are striped satins, fine French-serges, club and shepherd checks, cream serges, from 60c to $1.75 yard.

A Forchanded Man

"Well, we shall have Easter with us again soon," observed the child, good-natured man as he rubbed his hands together.
"Yes, it has a way of coming every spring," replied the man who had been looking out of the window.
"And—Easter Bait," smiled the other.
"Yes, Easter brings them out."
"And millions of dollars are spent on them?"
"Yes, millions."
"And tens of thousands of husbands are rendered financially hard up?"
"Yes, hundreds of thousands."
"I take it that you are a married man?"
"Oh, yes, I have a wife and three teachers."
"And they'll all want Easter bait?"
"Of course—of course."
"But you don't seem worried about it."
"Not at all, sir—not at all. I have arranged for them to start on a trip for China just a week before Easter Sunday, and of course their old hats will be all right. That the thing all dried for the last three months. Saved me $5,000. Oh, so, I'm not worrying any."

The
DONNA ISABEL

By Randall Parrish

Scarcely a reminder was left of that horrible interior dominated by death which had been revealed to me a few hours before by the smoky glare of the torch. While we were laboring forward to clear the deck, Doris and Celeste evidently had also been diligently employed, and with womanly intuition had given to the desolate interior a home-like touch which was irrefragable. I could only come to a pause-gazing about and wondering if we could really be about upon a century-old wreck, tossed helplessly on the waters of the Polar sea. The old-fashioned swinging lanterns, three old-fashioned rays over the dining room, while in the center the table, covered by a spotless cloth, was fairly glistening in a brilliant display of ancient silver, newly polished, and of decorated glass. Doris, who had been engaged in giving the arrangement some final deft touches, turned instantly at the sound of our entrance, her sweet face brightening with interest as she read the amazement pictured in my eyes.

"You have actually worked a marvel!" I exclaimed, admiringly. "Where in the world did you unearth such a display?"

"From a locker behind the steward's pantry," she replied, smilingly. "But, oh," with a shiver, "it was most bitterly cold in there when we first opened the door. I actually had to wait half an hour before venturing in. Yet you should have seen what we found; this is not half—the silver service was simply magnificent; and so—very places in beautifully engraved with a facsimile of the ship, and a masterpiece of art."

I gazed at the bit of plate handed me, weighing it in my hand, and studying the decided elegance and grace of the room that those old galleons were often furnished regardless of expense. "I said, 'and the Donna were high livered. Did you make any other discoveries?'"

"Only several cases of liquor, but all were frozen solid. The lazarette opened from the pantry, and we succeeded in lifting the trapdoor, but the cold of the air which came up was so intense that we were compelled to drop it again immediately. I never imagined such an atmosphere possible."

"It is the breath of 125 years of polar winter," I explained. "This very cabin was of that same temperature when we first broke through its ice covering."

She pressed her palms to her temples, staring about her at the gray, gold-decorated interior.

"Do you actually mean to tell me that—that this wreck has been drifting and tossing about all that time?" she questioned, lovingly.

"No, not drifting and tossing about, but solidly imbedded within the ice far south of this. This vessel is the Donna Isabel—the same one Tuttle saw—and her log-book lies in that farthest stateroom yonder. Its last entry was made in September, 1753."

She sank down upon the bench, her eyes upon my face, and I heard her lips repeating softly: "September, 1753, September, 1753," as though the conception could hardly find acceptance in her mind. The men were grouped close beside the entrance, while De Nova and Celeste had gone forward to assist Dade in bringing his supper from the galley, so that for the moment we were comparatively alone. As I bent over, wondering what I had best say, she questioned quickly, with a little sharp drawing of the breath: "And—the people, Jack, the—crew? What became of them?"

"Dead more than a century ago," I answered solemnly. "I did not stop this morning to read the log, and so I know little of their story. But the vessel itself tells of storm and of long struggle in the ice; probably most of those on board perished from exposure and cold."

Her hands clasped mine, her cheeks white from apprehension.

"Were—were there any—any bodies—here?"

"Yes," I replied reluctantly, not daring to say otherwise.

"How—how many?"

"Four men, a woman, and a child."

An instant she stared into my face; then swept her eyes about the lighted cabin, only to bury them within her hands, her whole body trembling.

"—a woman and child! Here! Here! for 125 years! Oh, merciful God!" she lifted her eyes again, filled with horror, her hands clenched.

"They—they were actually here, appearing natural? looking as they did in life?"

"Yes; they seemed to be sleeping; for they had been solidly frozen in the very attitudes in which they died. The woman rested on the couch yonder. She had beautiful dark hair and eyes, and must have been about 30 years of age. The child was in a bunk, a little flaxen-haired girl of three or four."

"And—and you buried them?"

"As best we could. We wrapped them in blankets, and consigned them to the deep, with a prayer for their souls." I bent closer. "Doris, dear, don't let this rest so heavily upon you. I wish I might have kept it all hidden. It was only the end of one of the innumerable tragedies of the sea, and must face our own needs now, and that task will require all our courage."

I thought she did not hear me, the tears glistening to fall between her

Angers, half-suppressed sobs shaking her form. Yet as I rested my hand upon her shoulder, she looked up at me out of moistened eyes, her lips firmly set.

"Yes—yes; I know, Jack, but—but it is all so terrible, and—and has come to me with such a shock. I can not comprehend it—that they should have actually been here—here, all those years—waiting! But I will not think of it any longer; I—I will do something to make me forget."

We all messed together, sitting upon the long benches drawn up about the table, Dade waiting upon us, with Doris and Celeste occupying places between De Nova and myself. At the beginning we spoke little, the strangeness of our surroundings holding us silent, but the minds of all being busy with the same thought, we insensibly drifted into conversation regarding our chances of rescue, and the history of the old vessel in whose cabin we floated. Once De Nova introduced the subject of the treasure which might be stored away below deck, and the men exhibited their interest by numerous questions; but I gave them little encouragement along this line, realizing that for the present our earliest effort should be to transform the wreck into some degree of safety—a safe first, and a clean rudder; these attained, the search for treasure might begin.

What a scene and group that was!—the wintry night without, the drifting fog of snow, the helpless bulk rising and falling upon the treacherous heave of the sea, that odd, violet-colored light glimmering over us. The faces are even before me—the girl-like looking Celeste, with her dark curls and white teeth; Lady Darlington, her gray eyes still moist as she glanced about the interior, forgetful of its memories; De Nova, jaunty as ever, with no thought beyond the present, recalling to my mind with every movement the face of that dead Spaniard who for more than a century had sat where he was sitting; Sanchez, pale and with that hunted look, a counterpart no doubt of some seaman this ship had known in other days; McKnight, burly and red-necked; Kelly, his blue eyes filled with the morrow of old Ireland; Johnson, broad-shouldered, and sober-faced, looking steadily, with never a lift of his shaggy brows; and Dade, fluttering about like a waiter ashore, with his eternal smiling and suggestion of a tip.

When the dishes had finally been removed I gave the men permission to smoke, went back to the after stateroom, and brought forth the log-book, which we made an effort to decipher. It was roughly written and by a number of different hands, and between us our knowledge of early Spanish script was barely sufficient to enable us to read a portion of it. The earlier entries made by the captain, although badly faded, were legible enough, bringing the story of the voyage down to the latter part of July, and recounting a series of severe gales, involving the loss of several members of the crew. Then a new hand took up the pen, "Baliza, first officer," the captain having been killed by a falling spar; for a week or ten days the tale was of fierce struggles in the ice-pack, and a steady drift to the southward. Others followed—"Alencaster, second officer," "Salvatore, government agent," every line the record of new disaster, gales, wrecks, rigging and death. They were locked in beyond all hope, early in August, vast hummocks overhanging the deck, the foremast sundered by ice, the cold so deadly the red-hot stove scarcely kept the numbing chill from the cabin, the doors and windows of which they had covered with blankets. Not a day passed but that they carried out their dead upon the ice, leaving them beyond sight of the deck. The names were all written down. There came a time when the survivors were too few and weak even for that service; when they could do nothing but cower within the cabin and cast dice to settle on who should

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Her.

Willimantic, Conn.—"For five years, I suffered untold agony from female troubles, causing backache, irregularities, dizziness and nervous prostration. It was impossible for me to do anything but lie in bed. I tried three different doctors and each told me something different. I received no benefit from any of them, but seemed to suffer more. The last doctor said nothing would restore my health. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and in a few days I was restored to my natural health."—Mrs. ETTA DONOVAN, Box 200, Willimantic, Conn.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills, and suffering women owe it to themselves to at least give this medicine a trial. Proof is abundant that it has cured thousands of others, and why should it not cure you?

go down into the icy hold and bring up the fuel which alone kept life in them. They drank and played cards; they quarreled, forgetting everything human and reverting to brutes. The child of Senora Alcatraz died; the next day the mother went quietly to sleep, never to wake again. They did not even know when her final breath came. She was the last of the women. The boatswain, Pedro Reo, passed away that same night, sitting on the deck; and there was left only Salvatore, who had gone mad, a seaman named Juan Ruiz, and a passenger, Antonio Baltoro. It was the latter who wrote the final entry, September 11, 1753: "I touched Ruiz just now, he was stone cold; there is only Salvatore left, grinning at me across the table; the last candle is going out, too, and I haven't strength to go after more. Jesus, mercy." It ended in the blank page.

I straightened up, unable to articulate, scarcely able to see. Celeste clung convulsively to De Nova's sleeve, her eyes staring at me, her lips parted as if for a scream; Doris had bowed her face upon the table; the men sat huddled, breathing heavily. So intense was the silence that I could hear the crackling of the coal, the sharp swish of snow against the window. And that awful thing had actually happened here, here where we were sitting! Here in the pitiless darkness, those last two lives had gone out to meet their God—despairing, hopeless! Scarcely realizing what I did, I bent low over Lady Darlington.

"Doris, sweetheart," I whispered, my words barely audible to her alone, "this will drive us all mad unless we can do something to bring back faith and hope. I beg of you to sing to us, sing to us now."

She looked up, white-faced, wet-eyed, her hands trembling violently as they touched mine.

"Oh, I could not, I could not; the words would choke me."

She arose unsteadily to her feet, gripping the table, then the back of the bench, and thus helped, staggered rather than walked forward. A long, breathless moment she stood, grasping the window-casing, staring blindly out into the dark, the snow decking the glass, her shoulders bent and trembling. She turned slowly, ahen-lipped, one hand shadowing her eyes. Twice she endeavored vainly to find voice; then, clear, yet with the glimmering of tears clinging to each word, she sang:

Jesus, Saviour, pilot me
Over life's tempestuous sea;
Under waves before me roll,
Hiding rock, and treacherous shoal,
Chart and compass come from Thee;
Jesus, Saviour, pilot me.

Advertising
may plead

For goods than the goods can speak for themselves, yet in a legitimate way. Here is a curious incident that illustrates the point. It happened to a man who is, himself, in the advertising business, and for the necessity of it we will vouch:

This man read an advertisement exploiting a certain fact in a current paper. The article appeared so interesting that the man went to a news-stand and bought the paper. To his surprise and amusement, he found that he had previously bought the same paper, run through it, and passed by the special article in question, without its having attracted him enough, to read it. Yet, upon reading it, proved to be what the advertisement claimed.

The deduction seems to be this: In a busy world it is not enough for a commercial product to be good; its goodness must be pointed out by whitewor parties are interested. A virtue that is not advertised has to be its own reward. Virtue that is advertised is, as the Greeks used to say, "unconquerable in strife."

The circulation of THE DAILY GAZETTE is sufficient to reach most everybody interested.

HARRIMAN ADVISES NEVADA.

Days People Should Legislate in Favor of Rail Combinations.
Reno, Nev., Mar. 29.—When he stepped from his private car at the Southern Pacific railroad yards at Reno yesterday E. H. Harriman at first declined to be interviewed. Later he relented, saying:

"What do you want me to talk about?"

"Railroad matters, the people of Nevada are somewhat agitated at the present time about the traffic rates, and we would like to hear from you," was the answer.

Mr. Harriman quickly replied: "It is played out; it is played out; it is past and gone. If Nevada wants to get in the lead, her people should legislate in favor of combinations and coalitions of transportation lines."

"As civilization progresses that is sure to come, as it is so evidently for the good of the country at large. Every dollar that is invested in unnecessary property is dead and to that extent prevents the investment of capital in other developing enterprises, and the permanent employment of labor. I mean by that, the money is wasted, it brings no return and passes out of the channels of trade."

"Get straightened out in Nevada and take the lead in what is bound to come."

COSTS HIM $3,000 TO SPIT.

Ohio Farmer Who Expecteded on Girl's Dress Loose Suit.
Dayton, O., Mar. 29.—Because he spat with "promedulation and malice" on the white dress of Edith Shockey, aged 14, at a lawn party in this city in 1907, Levi P. Polter, a wealthy farmer, will have to pay the girl $3,000 damages, according to a verdict returned by a jury in the common pleas court.

The case had been on trial the entire week, the jury having disagreed when the case was heard a year ago. It was proved to the satisfaction of the jury that not only was the girl's dress, a muslin garment, ruined, but that the girl suffered a shock as the result of the assault, from which she has not entirely recovered.

LONE BANDIT ROBS TRAIN.

Compels Burlington Passengers in Nebraska to "Shell Out."

Lincoln, Neb., Mar. 29.—A telephone message from Fairfield early this morning says an undisciplined bandit held up the Fairfield local train of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and robbed the passengers in the day coach.

The man, who was masked, boarded the train probably at Clay Center and between the two towns placed a revolver at the head of Conductor Barry and compelled him to walk the length of the car and ordered the passengers to turn over their money. The sum obtained was not large. The man escaped. Burlington officials and detectives in Lincoln were notified.
